

FACEWORK'S COMMUNITY MAKER SPACE

From London

From Afghanistan

Facework is an award-winning social enterprise which has been granted funding to pilot a new approach to supporting local people on their journey to work.

Using the skills of some of the 120 sanctuary seekers Facework has worked with in the last year, we have transformed the old pharmacy in New Cross into a practical Maker Space for the whole community.

The aim is to help all of us to make, connect, learn new skills and find ways to revive our high street and strengthen our community. Whether you have lived in Lewisham for years, or have recently arrived, join us on this community making journey.

Sir Sadiq Khan

"Your innovative approach, which integrates mental health support, self-employment opportunities, and social integration, has not only strengthened community connections but also created a scalable model for other boroughs. The Facework RESET programme's use of refugee "navigators" to reach underserved communities is a brilliant example of how lived experience can be a powerful tool for fostering inclusion and breaking down barriers to employment."

Sir Sadiq Khan, Mayor of London

WEEKLY PROGRAMME

We have structured activities so there is something for those in work, those needing help in finding work and those who no longer work but have something to give back and share.

The focus is on practical making; whether that is making an object, making new connections, making food or music, making a new network.

We provide the space you bring your ideas.
